CREED

I believe in one God, the Father almighty,
maker of heaven and earth,
of all things visible and invisible.
I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ,
the Only Begotten Son of God,
born of the Father before all ages.
God from God, Light from Light,
true God from true God,
begotten, not made,
consubstantial with the Father;
through him all things were made.
For men and for our salvation
he came down from heaven,

and by the Holy Spirit
was incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and became man.
For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate,
he suffered death and was buried,
and rose again on the third day
in accordance with the Scriptures.
He ascended into heaven
and is seated at the right hand of the Father.
He will come again in glory
to judge the living and the dead
and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit,
the Lord, the giver of life,
who proceeds from the Father and the Son,
who with the Father and the Son
is adored and glorified,
who has spoken through the prophets.

I believe in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church.
I confess one Baptism
for the forgiveness of sins
and I look forward to the resurrection
of the dead
and the life of the world to come. Amen.

PARISH REMEMBRANCE Throughout the year, because we are the Cathedral Church, we remember in prayer at Mass and Vespers each of the parishes and missions of the Archdiocese of Seattle on a Sunday near their feast day. This week we remember in prayer the parishes of Our Lady of Good Help in Hoquiam, and Our Lady of Perpetual Help in Everett.

Dear Friends,

On Tuesday, August 21, Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen celebrated his 91st birthday, and this coming Thursday, August 30 he will mark the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a bishop. And in this year when we are marking the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Second Vatican Council, it's worth mentioning that Archbishop Hunthausen is the only living American bishop who participated in all four sessions of the Council, 1962-1966!

Archbishop Hunthausen was a great blessing to this Archdiocese during his sixteen years as our Archbishop, and he continues to be a blessing to us through his prayers and his generous support of the ministries of the Cathedral parish. I know you will want to join me in offering special prayers for him as he marks these milestone moments.

Father Ryan

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN LEARNING MORE ABOUT THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND/OR BECOMING CATHOLIC? You are invited to participate in the RCIA, a process of initiation into the Catholic community of faith. Getting to know Good Pope John

On September 30, thanks to some generous parishioners, a permanent shrine to Blessed John XXIII, the Pope who called the Second Vatican Council, will be established in the north aisle of the Cathedral.

Pope John granted an audience to the Canadian bishops who had come to Rome for the Council. During its course he said to them: “Do you think that I brought you to Rome so that you should all sing the same psalm like monks in choir?”

Joy and Hope in Christ: Vatican II

Part 15 in a series

August 26, 2012

This year, 2012, marks the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Second Vatican Council, which began on October 11, 1962, and closed on December 8, 1965. Throughout the year, we celebrate the Council, and explore its teachings through bulletin inserts, lectures, and a variety of special events. You'll find the entire series at the Cathedral website, www.stjames-cathedral.org.

Towards Perfect Love: The Council and Bishops, Priests, and Religious

The broad vision of the Church presented in Lumen Gentium called for a new understanding of the Church and how it functions. Before the Council, the Church itself was seen primarily as a hierarchy, quite starkly divided ("There are two kinds of Christians, clerics and lay people," said a 12th-century canonist [quoted in Keys to the Council]). But beginning with Pope Pius XII, a new understanding of the Church as the Mystical Body of Christ began to emerge. In Lumen Gentium, the Church is seen as a mystery. It is, first and foremost, the people of God, one body with many members. Within that body, some are called to special roles of leadership, but all such calls are rooted in the baptismal priesthood shared by all. The roles of bishop, priest, and consecrated religious remain an essential part of the Church. Each of these callings would, however, need to be revisited in light of the Council's move towards renewal, reform, and aggiornamento. That happened in four documents related to bishops, priests, and religious.

Bishops: Successors to the Apostles

Christus Dominus, the Decree on Bishops, generated the most intense debate because of the teaching on collegiality, which stated that bishops were called to lead the Church, together with the Bishop of Rome—the Pope. "By divine institution and by virtue of their apostolic office, all of them jointly are responsible for the Church" (6). The teaching was controversial not because it threatened the Pope—it was always clear that the Pope remained the Supreme Pontiff—but because it threatened the long-held sway of the Roman Curia. The Decree on Bishops also called for the creation of a Synod of Bishops, so that the Pope could consult and hear from representatives of the entire college of bishops on an ongoing basis. And it called for the reform of the curia, which should be restructured and revisited in light of its true function—to support the bishops and to serve the Church.

In addition to these areas of reform, the Decree on Bishops emphasizes the pastoral role of Bishops who, as successors to the Apostles, are called to be spiritual leaders not only to their priests and to the religious within the diocese, but to the entire flock entrusted to them. They are to encourage the active involvement of the laity and to use every means at their disposal—including "social research" (16), to stay abreast of the situation and needs of the flock. They have a special responsibility also for those in their diocese who are not Catholic, and are called to form friendly and fruitful ties with non-Catholics as well as Catholics.

Seattle's own Archbishop Connolly addresses the Council during the debate on the Decree on Priestly Ministry, 1965.

On Priestly Ministry and Formation

Edward Hahnenberg observes that the title of the document on priests went through a number of changes. From De Clericis (on clerics) to De Sacerdotibus (on priests) to De Presbyterorum Ministerio et Vita (On the Ministry and Life of Presbyters). The change is significant: the Latin word sacerdos means, literally, one who offers a sacrifice, and emphasizes the ritual role of the priest as dispenser of the sacraments. The word presbyter, on the other hand, comes from a Greek word meaning "elder." The change shows a subtle but significant shift, emphasizing the priest's role of leadership within the Christian community. While the priest is set apart, he is set apart only in order better to serve the faithful. "The priests of the New Testament are, it is true, by their vocation to ordination, set apart in some way in the midst of the People of God, but this is not in order that they should be separated from that people or from any person, but that they should be completely consecrated to the task for which God chooses them. They could not be the servants of Christ unless they were witnesses and dispensers of a life other than that of this earth. On the other hand, they would be powerless to serve people if they remained aloof from their life and circumstances" (3).

In order to realize this new vision of the priest as a servant leader in the midst of the People of God, a new kind of seminary education was necessary. The document on priestly formation, Optatam Totius, called for a healthy, integrated approach to preparation for ministry.

To the Sources of Religious Life

The renewal of religious life (like that of so many other areas addressed by the Council) started well before the Council. In the 1940s, there was a movement towards increased education for women religious, who began to pursue advanced degrees in order better to serve the needs of their communities. In the 1950s, Pope Pius XII encouraged the formation of new religious congregations, and the adaptation of existing ones, to meet the challenges of the present day. These trends helped shape the Council's decree on religious life, Perfectae Caritatis.

Religious life, the document says, is, like all other vocations in the Church, rooted in baptism. (This is the reason many religious sisters and brothers returned to the use of their baptismal name, rather than the name given them in religious life, as the Council's decrees were implemented.) Two key themes intertwine in the document: adaptation to modern times, and return to the sources. The two are connected. Religious communities of both men and women were urged to rediscover the charism, the special spiritual gift, of their founder, and to adapt their mode of life to best live out that charism in the present day. This resulted in changes not only in externals like the use of the habit, but in even more dramatic internal changes, especially in how the communities govern themselves.

CELEBRATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE OPENING OF THE 2ND VATICAN COUNCIL

Lectures and Events

The Second Vatican Council opened on October 11, 1962. Throughout this anniversary year, special events and educational opportunities will help us mark the 50th anniversary of a watershed moment in our Church and our world. This is a time to give thanks for the gifts of the Spirit in our Church, to be renewed in our understanding of the Council, and to look to the future. "Illuminated by the light of this Council, we confidently trust the Church will become greater in riches. Gaining strength and new energies from the Council, she will look to the future without fear" (Blessed John XXIII).

A series of lectures by noted local and national speakers will explore different aspects of the Second Vatican Council and what it means to us today.
