MERCY 2016 WORLD MISSION SUNDAY
CHANGES THE WORLD

“Faith is God’s gift....it grows thanks to the faith and charity of evangelizers who witness to Christ. As they travel through the streets of the world, the disciples of Jesus need to have a love without limits, the same measure of love that our Lord has for all people. We proclaim the most beautiful and greatest gifts that he has given us: his life and his love.”

-Pope Francis, from his message for World Mission Sunday 2016

Your prayers and generous support today give life-changing help to mission churches in territories covering more than half the globe. You support clinics caring for the sick and dying, orphanages providing a place of safety and shelter, and schools offering education from kindergarten through high school. Your help provides for seminarians preparing for the priesthood, and lay catechists, Sisters and Brothers in formation programs.

On World Mission Sunday (celebrated in every parish in the world), we are called to be missionary disciples especially to those most in need of the Good News of Jesus Christ. Spiritual and material sharing enables all of us, rich or poor, to be evangelized and to serve. The Second Vatican Council proclaimed, “The pilgrim Church on earth is missionary by its very nature,” reminding us that all of us are called to be on mission.

Sister Ferdos Zora helps a student draw in a preschool for displaced children run by the Dominican Sisters of St. Catherine of Siena in Ankawa, near Erbil, Iraq. The children, and the nuns themselves, were displaced by ISIS from Mosul and Qaraqosh in 2014. The sisters have established a variety of schools and other ministries among the displaced. Al-le - lu - ia, al-le - lu - ia, al-le - lu - ia, al-le - lu - ia, al-le - lu - ia, al-le - lu - - - ia!

Jesus addressed this parable to those who were convinced of their own righteousness and despised everyone else. "Two people went up to the temple area to pray; one was a Pharisee and the other was a tax collector. The Pharisee took up his position and spoke this prayer to himself, 'O God, I thank you that I am not like the rest of humanity—greedy, dishonest, adulterous—or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week, and I pay tithes on my whole income.' But the tax collector stood off at a distance and would not even raise his eyes to heaven but beat his breast and prayed, 'O God, be merciful to me a sinner.' I tell you, the latter went home justified, not the former; for whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and the one who humbles himself will be exalted."

PROFESSION OF FAITH

I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth,
of all things visible and invisible.

I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ,
the Only Begotten Son of God,
born of the Father before all ages.
God from God, Light from Light,
true God from true God,
begotten, not made,
consubstantial with the Father;
through him all things were made.
For us men and for our salvation
he came down from heaven,

[ALL BOW]

and by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary,
and became man.

[ALL STAND UPRIGHT]

For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate, he suffered death and was buried,
and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures.

He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father.
He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life,
who proceeds from the Father and the Son,
who with the Father and the Son
is adored and glorified, who has spoken through the prophets.

I believe in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church.
I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come. Amen.

SOUTH SEATTLE DEANERY
PASTORAL PLANNING PROJECT

Parish-Wide Listening Sessions

St. James Cathedral, along with the other seventeen parishes in our South Seattle Deanery, has been working for the last year on a plan to address the current and future shortage of priests in the Archdiocese as well as such issues as lay leadership, parish collaborations, and the future of the faith communities in the central and south areas of the City.

As part of this planning process, our parish participated in the Disciple Maker Index survey in January as well as three Deanery wide convocations and several Focus Groups.

On Sunday, October 23, we will be holding listening sessions after all three morning masses to share with you the plan which the Deanery leadership is submitting to Archbishop Sartain in December. This is a chance to give your feedback on the draft plan before it is submitted to the Archbishop.

Please join us in the Rectory Parlors after the 8:00, 10:00 and 12:00 masses on Sunday, October 23.

Holy Things, Holy People

Exploring Catholic history in the Northwest through treasures from the past

PART 40: LETTER FROM THE HOME OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD

23 OCTOBER 2016

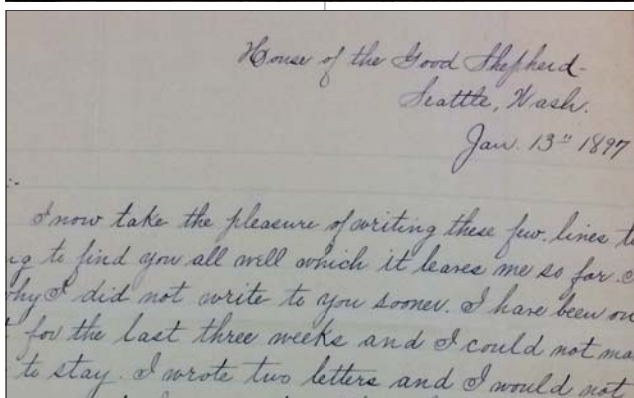

In the heart of Wallingford is a magnificent 11-acre facility—an impressive Italianate building, surrounded by trees, lawns, and gardens—mostly hidden behind a high wall. From 1906 until 1973, this was a boarding school for girls, operated by the Good Shepherd Sisters, whose special vocation was to care for young women in crisis.

The Order of Our Lady of Charity of the Good Shepherd was established in France in the wake of the French Revolution. The founder, Marie-Euphrasie Pelletier, felt a call to reach out to young women on the margins of society. “Poor children!” she wrote. “Beaten about in the great tempest of the world, they have known nothing but suffering; they have never experienced the sweetness and charms of virtue.” The community rapidly spread across France and then to the United States. In 1890, the Good Shepherd Sisters came to Seattle at the invitation of Bishop Aegidius Junger, and established the first Good Shepherd Home at 9th and Jefferson (just a few blocks south of the future site of St. James Cathedral). In 1906, they moved to beautiful new quarters in Wallingford.

The Home of the Good Shepherd welcomed two distinct populations. There was an orphanage for girls who had lost one or both parents. And there was what we would perhaps call a “reform school” for girls aged 13-17 who had been deemed “incorrigible” by the courts—either because they had run away from home, dropped out of school, become pregnant, or committed a variety of petty crimes. Many of them came from chaotic or abusive family situations at a time when abuse was seldom discussed. The girls came from every race and religious background, and only about a third of them were Catholic.

The Sisters were loving but strict. One student who entered the home in 1949 remembered Mother Serena and her salty language to disobedient girls: “Where you pussyfooting to, you smart Jack?” she would say, or “Don’t you twitch your tail at me.” Structure and routine were key to life at Good Shepherd. There were regular high school classes, with an emphasis on vocational training, and there was plenty of work: in order to support themselves, the girls and the Sisters operated a commercial laundry with many local clients, the largest of which was the Pullman Car Company. The girls also prepared the hosts used in many parishes in the diocese, and made and sold rosaries. In later years, they even had a beauty parlor, where they could learn the trade and have their hair done (one graduate later recalled, “one of the worst fried permanents I ever had was here”).

While there was no summer vacation for the girls at the Home, there was time for recreation. The girls had plenty of games and music, and they were allowed to watch television—at least when Bishop Fulton Sheen was on.

But there was no forgetting the bars on the windows. “I am in jail,” one former student remembered thinking on her first night in the dormitory. But, poignantly, another student felt reassured by the bars, which she thought were there not to keep her in but to keep out the frightening experiences and people she had escaped from.

For many years, the girls’ mail was carefully reviewed before it was delivered to them, chiefly to deter them from communicating with young men or planning to run away. The letter featured in this issue of Holy Things, Holy People was written by a young inmate in January, 1897, after three years with the Sisters. “My Dear Mother,” the letter begins, “I now take the pleasure of writing these few lines to you... One thing I know while I am with the mothers I am sure of saving my soul.... I got my brothers and sisters pictures... I think he looks so much like my papa and Charlotte looks like you so much and I think they look healthy too.... I should think times would get better, they have been hard for so long a time.” At the bottom of the page, crowded in the last inch of space, is a heart-breaking plea: “Why dont my papa write to me. He never answered my last letter I wrote to him. I think he dont like me as much as he used to.... I remain your loving daughter Lulu.”

Sixty years later, another student at Good Shepherd proudly sent home a photo of herself in her uniform. Written on the back were the words: “Dear Mom, someday you will be real proud of me. Love, Vivian.”

During its last decade of operation, the Good Shepherd Home struggled financially. The laundry, which had helped to sustain the institution, lost the bulk of its business, and the numbers of girls admitted dropped as well. The home closed in July of 1973. Today, the Good Shepherd Center is operated by Historic Seattle and houses a variety of non-profits, as well as providing residences for artists. It is a beautiful place to visit, and a poignant reminder of the Good Shepherd Sisters and the young women they served in this place.

I desire mercy

An exploration of the Biblical call to mercy

PATTY BOWMAN, PRESENTER

Mondays, November 7, 14, 21, and 28

6:30pm-8:00pm, Holy Names Room

Pastoral Outreach Center, 907 Columbia Street

"I desire mercy, not sacrifice, and knowledge of God rather than holocausts."

Hosea 6:6

As we draw near to the conclusion of the Year of Mercy, you are invited to join in an exploration of the theme of mercy as it appears in Scripture. Patty Bowman will help us to explore questions like: What are some of the ways in which mercy is described in Scripture? How is mercy consistent with the Biblical portrayal of justice? How does Scripture summon us to Pope Francis' "revolution of tenderness?"
