PROFESSION OF FAITH

I believe in one God,
the Father almighty,
maker of heaven and earth,
of all things visible and invisible.

I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ,
the Only Begotten Son of God,
born of the Father before all ages.
God from God, Light from Light,
true God from true God,
begotten, not made,
consubstantial with the Father;
through him all things were made.
For us men and for our salvation
he came down from heaven,

[ALL BOW]

and by the Holy Spirit
was incarnate of the Virgin Mary,
and became man.

[ALL STAND UPRIGHT]

For our sake he was crucified
under Pontius Pilate,
he suffered death and was buried,
and rose again on the third day
in accordance with the Scriptures.
He ascended into heaven
and is seated at the right hand of the Father.
He will come again in glory
to judge the living and the dead
and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit,
the Lord, the giver of life,
who proceeds from the Father and the Son,
who with the Father and the Son
is adored and glorified,
who has spoken through the prophets.

I believe in one, holy,
catholic and apostolic Church.
I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins
and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead
and the life of the world to come. Amen.

THE DOME DESCENDS

It was the morning of Wednesday, February 2, 1916. Though a heavy snow was falling, life at St. James Cathedral was proceeding much as usual. It was a feast day, after all—the Presentation of the Lord, or Candlemas.

The priests of the parish offered the usual series of morning Masses. The children of the Cathedral School trudged through the snow to school but were sent home early because of the weather. Seattle, unused to such extremes, was shutting down. “The white menace leveled its silent and interminable attack without cessation all day and night,” reported the P-I. “Beleaguered, Seattle fought its relentless and insidious enemy... and in the end admitted defeat.”

It must have been very quiet on First Hill when, without warning, the great dome descended. No one saw it fall, but people all over the hill heard it. The sacristan, James Creighton, was in the steam-heating plant nearby, and came running. The priests in the neighboring Rectory heard “a roar like the boom of a heavy gun” and hurried over. The sisters in the Cathedral School, readying their classrooms for the next day, heard what sounded like “a heavy snow slide,” looked out the window, and saw that the dome was no more.

The great dome had collapsed into the Cathedral crossing, bringing much of the ceiling—an area 80 feet square—with it. The suddenness and violence of the collapse was such that all the windows in the building were shattered. The entire south transept of the Cathedral was buried in several feet of ruddle—stone, wood, and steel, glass and copper, brick and mortar, and a great deal of snow. The pulpit was crushed under the debris, and the pews were sent flying in every direction. And yet, providentially, no one was in the Cathedral at the time of the disaster.

Among those who stood surveying the damage on that afternoon of February 2 was the Cathedral’s pastor, Monsignor William Noonan. The Monsignor (so the story goes, and it is well authenticated), fearful about how the Protestant establishment of the city might interpret this cataclysmic event at the Catholic Cathedral, turned to Bill O’Connell, the editor of the diocesan newspaper, the Progress, and cautioned him: “now Willum, not a word of this to the press!”

Of course the word did get to the press, and all the local papers carried the story the next day—in fact, the dome collapse made headlines as far away as Hawaii and Philadelphia! And the press turned out to be quite sympathetic to the tremendous loss the Catholic community had sustained. In the vivid journalistic language of the day, the P-I reported: “Viewed from within, the beautiful building of Italian Renaissance architecture looked like the scenes of destruction wrought by the cannons in Belgium.... The blizzard poured its white clouds and rapidly drifts began to sift over sacred images and objects of great beauty in bronze and onyx and marble.”

But the Cathedral would survive. Relive the story of the collapse of the Dome and the survival of St. James Cathedral on Tuesday evening at 7:00pm.

DOME'S DAY

Marking the Centennial of the Collapse of the Great Dome
and the Survival of St. James Cathedral

Tuesday, February 2, 2016 | 7:00pm | St. James Cathedral, Seattle

On February 2, 1916, just nine years after the dedication of St. James Cathedral, the great dome collapsed in a snowstorm. Images of the destruction made the news as far away as Honolulu and Philadelphia!

On the centennial of the disaster, we gather to look back on a never-to-be-forgotten day. With beautiful music, dramatic narrations, and lots of fun, we give thanks for the resilience and vision of the builders of the Cathedral, and for this wonderful building, which one-hundred years later continues to be a house of prayer for all people.

The program will last about an hour, and will be followed by a festive reception. All are welcome!

The great calamity which has visited us in the destruction of the cathedral is a source of intense sorrow to us all, and while we feel greatly afflicted, still we must accept it from the hands of God, who will, in His own good time convert our sorrow into joy.

Bishop Edward J. O'Dea, February, 1916

This Lent, the whole parish is invited to explore together Henri Nouwen's classic Return of the Prodigal Son, a beautiful meditation on Luke's parable and Rembrandt's masterpiece. What better way to answer Pope Francis' call to "rediscover the merciful face of the Father" during this Year of Mercy?

Small groups will gather in homes and at the Cathedral for five weeks during Lent. Sign up for Cathedral groups below or online at www.stjames-cathedral.org; if you live in West Seattle, Redmond, Green Lake, or Capitol Hill, contact Maria for details about being part of a neighborhood group. If you cannot participate in a small group, you're invited to participate on your own by reading the chapter and reflecting on the study questions provided for each week. This will be a wonderful way to draw together as a parish community for Lent during the Year of Mercy. Copies of Return of the Prodigal Son are available at a special discount in the Cathedral Bookstore. Information, Maria Laughlin, 206-382-4284 or e-mail m laughlin@stjames-cathedral.org.

Prayer for Christian Unity

Friday, February 5, 2016 6:30pm

On Friday, February 5 at 6:30 pm, at the conclusion of the international Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, Christians of every denomination are invited to gather at St. James Cathedral in downtown Seattle for an hour of prayer, song, and silence in the tradition of Taizé. Local leaders from many denominations will attend the service.

*Almighty God of love, look upon our willingness to serve you despite our spiritual poverty and limited abilities. Fulfil the deepest longings of our hearts with your presence.
 Fill our broken hearts with your healing love so that we may love as you have loved us.
 Grant us the gift of unity so that we may serve you with joy and share your love with all.
 This we ask in the name of your Son Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.*

National Catholic Schools Week

January 31-February 6, 2016

"Throughout my life, my parents have stressed the importance of a good Catholic education. Despite the financial difficulties and the sacrifices they had to make, they have sent my five siblings and me to a Catholic School. I am thankful to St James and the benefactors of the Scholarship Program for their generosity and support of Catholic education."
