DISMISSAL OF THE CATECHUMENS AND CANDIDATES (10:00 and Sunday Evening) CREED

I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth, of all things visible and invisible. I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God from God, Light from Light, true God from true God, begotten, not made, consubstantial with the Father; through him all things were made. For us men and for our salvation he came down from heaven, and by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and became man. For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate, he suffered death and was buried, and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures. He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father. He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, who with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified, who has spoken through the prophets. I believe in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church.
I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come. Amen.

Sacred Steps Sacramental Celebrations at St. James

CONGRATULATIONS AND GOD'S BLESSINGS to Julie Zubovic and Cody Harrold, married in the Cathedral on Saturday, October 6. Please pray for them as they begin their new life together.

THE ST VINCENT DE PAUL conferences of St. James thank cathedral parishioners for their generous donations last month. During September we made 48 home visits to our low income neighbors. Your contributions allowed us to help individuals and families pay their rent and stay safely in their homes. In addition, we prevented 8 utility shut-offs, provided food for 23 families, beds and furniture for 11 households, clothes for 5 people, and transportation assistance for 5 individuals. Our priority is preventing homelessness. This makes your contributions go a long way. Helping our neighbors pay their rent is far cheaper than picking up the pieces after they lose their homes. Members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society follow Jesus through service to those in need. Bearing witness to Christ's compassionate and liberating love, we show our commitment through person-to-person contact, making our home visits in pairs. Please consider joining our ministry to the poor among us. Information, Rob Millar 206-954-8902 and Tammy Bendix 206-595-9158.

Getting to know Good Pope John

Be sure to stop by our new shrine in honor of Blessed John XXIII to offer a prayer to this great saint of modern times.

When he first glimpsed himself in a full length mirror, dressed in papal regalia, his secretary overheard him mutter under his breath with a smile, "My God, this Pope is going to be a disaster on television!"

Joy and Hope in Christ: Vatican II

Part 18 in a series October 14, 2012

This year, 2012, marks the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Second Vatican Council, which began on October 11, 1962, and closed on December 8, 1965. Throughout the year, we celebrate the Council, and explore its teachings through bulletin inserts, lectures, and a variety of special events. You'll find the entire series at the Cathedral website, www.stjames-cathedral.org.

Gaudium et Spes: The Church in the Modern World

"The joy and hope, the grief and anguish of the people of our time, especially of those who are poor or afflicted in any way, are the joy and hope, the grief and anguish of the followers of Christ as well. Nothing that is genuinely human fails to find an echo in their hearts" (1). With these sublime words the Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World, Gaudium et Spes, begins. By far the longest of the Council's documents, Gaudium et Spes is a far-ranging expression of the solidarity of the Church with the whole human family, with whom the Church both rejoices and suffers, and to whom she proclaims the Gospel of Christ.

"Schema 13" becomes Gaudium et Spes

Before the Council began, Cardinal Suenens complained to Pope John XXIII that there were too many documents—the bishops had been sent more than 70 different texts to review. The Pope asked Suenens to suggest a way to organize this multitude of text. Suenens proposed that the Church look ad intra, at its selfgovernance, its relationships with groups within the Church, but also ad extra, at its relationship with the world. Eventually, these two broad themes would be addressed in two of the Constitutions. Lumen Gentium, on the nature of the Church, looks ad intra. And Gaudium et Spes looks ad extra.

The schema or draft document was known as "Schema 13" simply because that was the number assigned it in a list of the documents to discussed by the Council Fathers. Only in the Fourth Session was it finally given a name. The final document is divided into two main parts. Part One is entitled "The Church and Man's Vocation" and deals with the nature of the human person, and the responsibilities of individuals and societies. Part Two, "Some More Urgent Problems," addresses some key issues in the modern world: marriage and the family; culture; economic and social life; the political community; and, finally, the fostering of peace and the establishment of a community of nations.

Some Teachings of Gaudium et Spes

- There is a deepening dichotomy in the modern world. On the one hand, there is an increasing desire for equality: of poor nations, of women, of workers and farmers. And yet, even as modern communications media bring the world closer together, the divisions between rich and poor seem to be widening and the danger of war seems closer than ever. These stark dichotomies in the world are reflected in the individual, "torn by a welter of anxieties... blurred by materialism." In the face of all this division, within and without, the Church points to Christ, "the key, the center, and the purpose of the whole of man's history" (10).
- Atheism is a growing problem in the modern world, and it is important to understand that many different mindsets may be described with the same term. Christians have a responsibility to share the authentic teaching of Christ. We need to do this not only with cogent words, but with deeds. The scandalous divisions among Christians, and the hypocrisy that is evident when faith does not permeate the entire life of a Christian, are both contributing factors to the growth of atheism.

- Every person created in God's likeness and is endowed with human dignity. All crimes against life itself, or against the dignity of the human person—murder, genocide, abortion, euthanasia, slavery, prostitution, and so many others—do more damage to those who perpetrate them even than to the victims. While people obviously have different capacities, they are essentially equal: "forms of social or cultural discrimination in basic personal rights on the grounds of sex, race, color, social conditions, language or religion, must be curbed and eradicated as incompatible with God's design" (29).
- Gaudium et Spes marks a real development in the Church's teaching on marriage, which is here seen more as covenant than contract. Procreation is not the sole end of marriage: in their mutual love, married couples give witness to the God of love.
- The economy, both on the national and global levels, must be infused with morality. Investment is good, but its chief purpose is to "provide for the future and strike a rightful balance between the needs of present-day consumption, individual and collective, and the requirement of investment for future generations" (70). Those with responsibility in these areas must keep in mind "the pressing needs of underdeveloped countries."
- Gaudium et Spes ends with teachings on peace and war. We live in an era when new kinds of weapons bring a new "savagery" to war, threatening "barbarities far surpassing those of former ages" (79). Thus "a completely fresh reappraisal of war" is needed (80), because the very existence of future generations depends on it. The Council condemns the arms race as "one of the greatest curses on the human race" (81) because its effectiveness as a deterrent to war is questionable, and because "the harm it inflicts on the poor is more than can be endured" (81).
- "Frank dialogue" is the means to achieve these ends. "We are all called to be brothers; we ought to work together without violence and without deceit to build up the world in a spirit of genuine peace" (92). There are no easy solutions, but dialogue and honesty are the way to begin.

A New Saint: Kateri Tekakwitha

On October 21, 2012, at St. Peter's Basilica, Pope Benedict XVI will canonize a Native American woman who has been beloved by people in North America and beyond for nearly four hundred years:

Kateri Tekakwitha.

How do you get from blessed to saint?

The road to sainthood begins when a holy person's name is brought before the Congregation for the Causes of Saints at the Vatican. Careful review of the candidate's biography and writings and extensive interviews with any living eyewitnesses follow. If the cause is accepted, the holy person is declared "Venerable" and prayer asking the holy person's intercession is encouraged.

At this point in the process, the Church waits for miracles. A miracle is needed for beatification ("Blessed") and another miracle for canonization ("Saint"). For centuries, the Church has seen miracles worked through the intercession of the holy person as a sign that the person is truly with God in heaven. Just as the life, writings and impact of the holy person are carefully investigated, the miracles are subject to intense scrutiny. Medical records are submitted, doctors, nurses, family, and friends are interviewed, and the complete dossier is then submitted to Rome. When the miracle has been admitted by the Congregation for the Causes of the Saints, the road is open for the canonization of the holy person.

What miracle led to Blessed Kateri's canonization?

The canonization of Blessed Kateri has special meaning for the Church in Western Washington because the miracle that opened the way for her canonization took place in our own Archdiocese, with the miraculous healing of Jake Finkbonner, a young Ferndale boy who was attacked by flesh-eating bacteria in 2006. (Read Jake's story at the family website, www.jakefinkbonner.com) Jake, who is now 12, is a normal kid and a student at Assumption School in Bellingham. He and his family will be present when Kateri is canonized on October 21.

The story of Kateri Tekakwitha

Tekakwitha was born in 1656 in what is now New York to a Algonquin mother, a convert to Christianity, and an Iroquois father. When she was four years old, smallpox devastated her family and her tribe: in a few days, Kateri lost her mother, her father, and her brother. The disease left her severely scarred and almost blind (her name, "Tekakwitha" or "Tegahkouita" as it is variously spelled, is said to mean "the one who bumps into things"). She was raised by her aunts and uncles. Her situation became difficult when, as a teenager, she refused to marry the young man who had been chosen for her, and even more when, touched by the preaching of the "Blackrobes," the Jesuit missionaries, she converted to Christianity. At her baptism, Tekakwitha was given the name "Catherine" – Kateri.

Kateri endured much mockery and maltreatment for her faith. When she heard of the Mission of St. Francis Xavier du Sault, where she could practice her faith in peace, she left her home and set out on foot. There she spent the rest of her life, living among other Christian converts. She longed to enter religious life, but was not permitted to do so, though the Jesuit Fathers did allow her to make private vows. She lived a life of profound prayer and severe mortification until her death from tuberculosis at the age of 24, on April 17, 1680. Because of her love of chastity, Kateri came to be known as "the lily of the Mohawks." She was beatified by Blessed John Paul II in 1980, three hundred years after her death.

Image of Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha on the doors of St. Patrick Cathedral, New York City

A prayer honoring the new saint

O God, we thank you for your saint, Kateri Tekakwitha, and for all the wonders you have worked in answer to her prayers. Through her intercession, gather people from every nation, tribe, and language, to praise you in your Church in one canticle of praise. Through Christ our Lord.
