ST. JAMES CATHEDRAL

January 10, 2016

Dear Friends,

As we begin this new year, I want to tell you about some staff reorganization I have decided to do in order to carry out our pastoral ministry more effectively. The decision will eliminate one full-time staff position which, to say the least, is a painful and difficult thing to do but, after a good deal of prayer and consultation, I have come to the conclusion that we can better serve the parish by dividing certain of our pastoral ministries among three ministers instead of four.

The ministries involved are: family ministry (including pregnancy support, ministry to families with children, marriage enrichment ministry, ministry to divorced couples, and ministry to senior parishioners), funeral ministry, and grief ministry. In the past, these ministries have been led by two full-time staff members: Suzanne Lee and John Simpson. Beginning later this month, they will be headed up by Suzanne Lee, who will share responsibility for them with several staff members and volunteers. Difficult as this is to say—and I say it with deep regret—this means the elimination of the position that John Simpson has held for several years.

This will involve some other shifts as well. Rosanne Michaels, who heads up our Welcome Back and adult Confirmation programs, will now take over from Suzanne Lee the ministry to young families preparing to have their children baptized, while Kathleen McCabe will take on teaching our baptismal preparation classes. In addition, Rosanne will join Suzanne and Nancy Granger in leading the grief ministry group and, as needed, she will also assist with our ministry to seniors while continuing her parish retreat ministry.

There are a few other aspects of pastoral ministry that still other staff members have generously agreed to take over. Corinna Laughlin, director of liturgy, along with Peter Burns, assistant sacristan, will oversee the task of training and coordinating ministers of Holy Communion to visit our homebound parishioners.

One other aspect of this reorganization, and a happy one, will involve the use of key volunteers to assist in some of these ministries. As you know, our parish is blessed with a large number — an incredibly large number — of generous volunteers and I am convinced that with the help of volunteers, we will not only maintain, but even expand the ministries we offer.

Having said that, I want to acknowledge that changes are always difficult, and that personnel changes are especially difficult. With this in mind, let me take this opportunity to express in a public way my thanks to John Simpson for the ministry he has done so capably over these years. I know you will join me in wishing John well and in praying that God will open a door for him that will allow him to use his gifts for ministry. And I want also to take this opportunity to express my thanks to Suzanne Lee, Rosanne Michaels, Kathleen McCabe, and Peter Burns for their willingness to take on additional responsibilities.

Lastly, let me ask you to be patient with us as we make this transition. There may be some growing pains at first but I am confident that, with God's help and your understanding and support, we will continue to provide the kind of ministry that you, the wonderful people of this parish, deserve.

SANTO NIÑO – HOLY CHILD On Sunday, January 17, at the Noon Mass, we will have our annual celebration of the Santo Niño, the Holy Child Jesus. The image of Jesus as vulnerable child and mighty King is beloved throughout the world, and in a special way in the Philippines. All are invited to bring their own images of the Child Jesus from home for the blessing. The annual celebration will be followed by a fiesta in Cathedral Place Hall, with a marvelous feast of Filipino food prepared by a group of our own parishioners. All are wescome.

WELCOME BACK! Have you drifted away from your Catholic faith? Are you disillusioned by what you hear about the church? Do you desire a life filled with faith? St. James Cathedral offers a 9-week program for Catholics out of touch with a Church that once may have been home. It's a safe place to ask questions, and to experience a small community of faith. Winter session begins Monday, January 11, and continues Mondays through March. Sessions are 7:00 – 9:00 pm in Cathedral Place. Information, Rosanne Michaels, 206-654-4658, or rmichaels@stjames-cathedral.org.

ST. JAMES CATHEDRAL, ALONG WITH OTHER PARISHES IN THE SEATTLE AREA, has been invited to participate in a national study of vibrant parishes conducted by the Catholic Leadership Institute. All parishioners will be invited to complete a 10-15 minute survey online. The survey will be available from the week of January 18 through Ash Wednesday, February 10, and will invite you to reflect on your own spiritual growth and enable you to provide feedback about the Cathedral parish. All responses will be strictly confidential. The hope is that every Cathedral parishioner will participate in the survey. This information gleaned will be invaluable not only to the Cathedral pastoral team, but also to the Archdiocese of Seattle as they undertake long-term planning for the pastoral needs of our parishes. We will receive the results this summer at which time we will share what we have learned. More information is coming soon. Stay tuned!

PARISH REMEMBRANCE Throughout the year, because we are the Cathedral Church, we remember in prayer at Mass and Vespers each of the parishes and missions of the Archdiocese of Seattle on a Sunday near their feast day. This week we remember in prayer the parishes of St. Mary in Castle Rock and Centralia, and St. Mary Mission in Coupeville.

THANK YOU FROM THE CATHEDRAL KITCHEN Thanks, Marci Jewelry for making our Christmas Eve Dinner at the Cathedral kitchen so special. Your generous donation allowed the Cathedral kitchen to serve pork roast, mashed potatoes and more to over 160 guests in need. You helped make it merry for many! Thank you Pagliacci Pizza: With your help, our Cathedral Kitchen served your wonderful pizza to more than 170 dinner guests on Thursday, December 17. And thank you Horizon House, for donating fresh green salads to our Cathedral Kitchen in December. They were enjoyed and appreciated by all.

REPORT FROM ST VINCENT DE PAUL Your SVdP donations allowed our Cathedral Vincentians to make 143 home visits during October, November and December and help 222 low (or no) income residents of St James Parish who struggle to pay for life's necessities, such as rent, electricity, beds, food, clothes and basic hygiene products. That's an average of about 48 home visits and 74 people helped per month. Even more parish residents seek our assistance – please help, if you can! Information, Christine Henderson, 253-973-1441 or christinehsvdp@gmail.com.

Exploring Catholic history in the Northwest through treasures from the past

PART 34: ARCHBISHOP CONNOLLY'S COUNCIL INTERVENTION

10 JANUARY 2016

o one knew quite what to expect from the Second Vatican Council. Archbishop Connolly was not alone in assuming that it would be a splendid series of formalities in which he would participate by being present in the proper ecclesiastical attire. It all seemed very remote from the day-to-day realities of life in the Archdiocese of Seattle. In fact, Connolly was not sure he would stay beyond the opening of the Council on October 11, 1962.

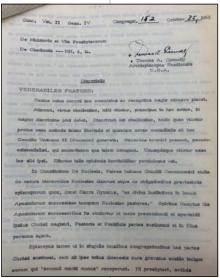

The opening ceremonies left him awestruck, and he sent back an enthusiastic account which was published the very next day in the Catholic Northwest Progress. "That I should live to see a day such as this! How good is the good God," he wrote. Connolly came away with an overwhelming "sense of continuity, of stability, in a world of violent change."

But, as Connolly soon discovered, Pope John XXIII did not want simply to maintain the Church in a changing world; he had gathered the bishops so the Church could respond to the needs of the time—and, yes, change. The Council would be no mere formality; it would be hard work. In addition to twenty hours of formal sessions at St. Peter's Basilica each week, the Council Fathers attended dozens of meetings, both formal and informal, outside of the Council Hall. Each evening, Connolly joined a group of Englishspeaking bishops at the Hotel Flora to talk over what had happened in the Council that day. It was at these meetings that Connolly (never a great Latinist) realized how much was really at stake. In November of 1962, he wrote: "We are not particularly united insofar as some of the proposed changes in the Liturgy are concerned. We are a typical cross-section of the fathers of the council at large and the discussions become quite serious to say the least."

For Connolly, as for so many other bishops, the Council was a journey of self-discovery. He had always considered himself moderately progressive, but now he sometimes found himself out of step with other bishops—and with the Holy Father. When a proposal was made about strengthening national bishops' conferences during the second session in 1963, Connolly argued, "if all these suggestions were acted upon, the ordinary or residential bishop or archbishop would be responsible not only to the Holy See and the Curia, but to the National Conference as well.... I ventilated a 'Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death' fervorino at a recent meeting of the American bishops on this point and found myself in the camp of the moss-backed reactionaries. Horrors!!!" Later, Connolly argued against any change in the fasting laws of the Church, but, he said resignedly, "my observations will not carry any weight for I have already tested the attitude of some of my confreres in this matter and my slant on the problem is quite old fashioned. I am still a moderate revisionist but to no avail."

Connolly was an attentive, but quiet participant in the Council action during the first, second, and fourth Sessions. As the fourth session of the Council drew to a close in 1965, Connolly prepared to address the Council himself. He knew the Council was making history, and he wanted to be part of it. He wrote an "intervention" (a formal address to be delivered before the entire assembly of Council Fathers) in response the Council document on the priesthood.

Connolly had quite a scare when a "standing" vote was taken to curtail discussion on the document, and the overwhelming majority of the Fathers stood up, indicating that they felt they had heard enough. "I had worked too long on my disquisition to see it suffer such an ignominious fate," Connolly wrote, and he assiduously collected considerably more than the requisite 70 bishops' signatures for his petition to be heard in the Council Hall.

Connolly spoke on October 25, 1965, and his was one of the very last interventions given from the Council floor. Once again he fell, almost in spite of himself, among the "moss -backed reactionaries," speaking about the importance of priestly obedience in the wake of the Council. "The 'aggiornamento' of the Church can make it more difficult for a priest today to obey an order whose wisdom for the apostolate he does not personally see, and in these days of ferment, priests are more apt to have their own opinions on many important matters," he said in his address. In the account he sent home, he added, "I took great pains, of course, to inform my confreres that I had no trouble on that score in the Archdiocese of Seattle.... Something had to be said along this line and my remarks were considered to be quite apropos, as it were." The address lasted ten minutes, and when Connolly returned to his seat, "my seat mates applauded the offering very quietly and we shook hands all around.... I shall not soon forget it. However, I was glad when the ordeal was over."

A few weeks later, Archbishop Connolly was home again, sharing the teachings of the Council and preparing to implement them in the Archdiocese of Seattle. "There is no doubt in my mind that the Council has been an outstanding success insofar as the achievement of the aims of Pope John XXIII, John the Good, are concerned," he wrote. "It is equally true, of course, that the successful attainment of the Council's aims and purposes will depend to a great extent on you and you and you, on the manner in which you translate into action in your daily lives the decrees and declarations promulgated by the Holy Father as the official law of the Church." Archbishop Connolly invited to the faithful of the Archdiocese of Seattle to study, to explore, and to change in response to the Second Vatican Council—just as he had done himself.

Marking the Centennial of the Collapse of the Great Dome and the Survival of St. James Cathedral

Tuesday, February 2, 2016 | 7:00pm | St. James Cathedral, Seattle

On February 2, 1916, just nine vears after the dedication of St. James Cathedral, the great dome collapsed in a snowstorm. Images of the destruction made the news as far away as Honolulu and Philadelphia!

On the centennial of the disaster. we gather to look back on a neverto-be-forgotten day. With beautiful music, dramatic narrations, and lots of fun, we give thanks for the resilience and vision of the builders of the Cathedral, and for this wonderful building, which onehundred years later continues to be a house of prayer for all people.

The program will last about an hour, and will be followed by a festive reception. All are welcome!

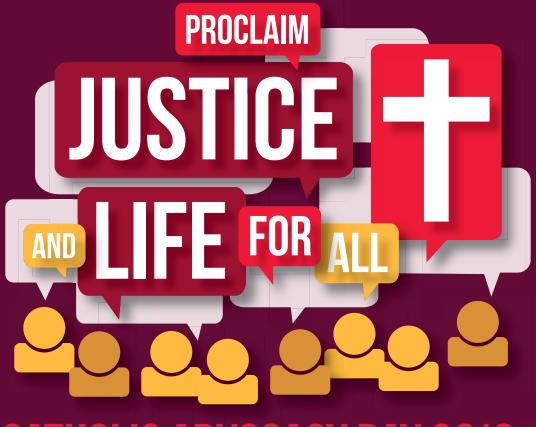

JOIN THE CELEBRATION Music • Dramatic Narrations • Irish stepdance • Old-time hymns • History • Fun

The great calamity which has visited us in the destruction of the cathedral is a source of intense sorrow to us all, and while we feel greatly afflicted, still we must accept it from the hands of God, who will, in His own good time convert our sorrow into joy.
